Household computers and laptops have become the ultimate tool for entertainment within our humble abodes. Among social activity, email, research, homework, and a number of other things, the household computer has become an alternative way to watch TV. Most of us are spending more time on the computer than we do with any other entertainment media in our homes. If you don't believe that, take a nice evening stroll out one night, and notice as you walk past open viewed windows, people sitting at home on their computers. Go out again the next night or even one night the next week, and you'll likely find those same people once again sitting in front of their
